

Firefly Trio plays a swinging mix of jazz standards and original tunes. Firefly Trio also performs with vocalist Diana Leigh, <https://dianaleigh.com>.

Keith Evan Green (drums) plays inspired music of all styles, with a focus on small-group jazz. Green studied at the NJ School of Percussion and began his university studies as a music major at Northwestern University. In his early years as a percussionist, Green performed in the New Jersey All-State Band and in Fairleigh Dickinson University's orchestra (which performed at Carnegie Hall during his association). Green played drums throughout the NYC-metro area with a band led by pianist Larry Ferrara, who became Director of Music Performance at NYU. Green's website is at <http://keithevangreen.com> and via the QR code below.

Kevin Jones (guitar) has been playing guitar since the age of twelve after studying piano and trumpet as a younger child. He gravitated to jazz as his desire grew to use the guitar as a tool "to be able to play what I hear in my head." Kevin studied jazz at San Diego State University and was a member of the Nathan Hubbard Trio which received "Best Jazz Album" at the San Diego Music Awards. Kevin worked full time in a variety of musical contexts in the San Diego area before moving to Ithaca in 2019.

Stu Zimny (acoustic bass) has been playing music since he was a child. He studied bass with various jazz greats and classical musicians in New York, Boston, and California. Living in the southwest for 15 years and working as a technologist, Stu freelanced in both jazz and classical settings. He relocated to the Finger Lakes region and has been working locally with various groups since 2017, including the Ageless Jazz Big Band in Ithaca and the regional orchestra.
